A RULE nisi was obtained on Wednesday calling on plaintiff in Regina v. Saint to show cause why the case should not be tried on an early day next term. The Attorney General and Mr Pollard (instructed by the Crown solicitor) appeared against the rule; Mr Hayllar (instructed by Mr Gaskell) in support. The argument lasted over two hours. The Attorney General relied on the discretionary power vested in him by common law, on all the circumstances of the case, in was cluding the irritating nature of the articles which had appeared in the China Mail since the informations were laid, and trying the case, remarking that the Court General as prosecuting for Her Majesty to observe it. Mr Hayllar commented learned Attorney General, in first retish Government at the instance of Napoafter the informations (three) had been filed, delaying to proceed. The Attorney was obdurate. A SHANGHAI contemporary publishes proclamation by the Taotal of that city which has, not unnaturally, excited the indignation of the foreign residents. The statement that "robbers while in prison shall be chained, mannacled and fettered with treble irons, and should any die in prison in consequence of harsh treatment, while the total number of deaths is under five, no blame shall attach to the official in charge, reveals a horrible state of callousness to human suffering; and it must be remembered that the "tender mercies of the heathen" thus set forth are applicable offences with which they are charged. The Recorder invites attention to this fact by way of warning to those who think that the exterritoriality clauses of the Treaty could with safety be given up And, if any one dreamt of advocating such a course while permitting the fiendish provisions of native law to remain in full force, its warning would be needful. But as the foremost in advocating the "opening up of China" it is but right (lest readers in England mistake the views of ourselves and those who think with us that we should recall to memory the persistency with which we have insisted on the necessity of forcing—if need be at the point of the bayonet—the Chinese to reform in at least the worst particulars the atrocities of her penal code. THE FIRE. To the Editor of the " CRINA MAIL." Sir, -It might not perhaps be altogether out of place to point to a move which seems in every Hongkong fire somewhat unneces sary. It is a thing which, although doubtless carried out from the best motives often effects an incalculable harm, and add materially to that state of confusion and disorganization at which so very naturall the finger of scorn has of late been pointed. I refer to the feverish auxiety which seems to possess nearly every European to 'trip up' and otherwise molest Chinamen I am well aware of the amount of 'Club Law necessary for the proper subjection of the Celestial element, but when that Law is universally suforced whether by a layman or divine, a civilian, policeman, or a

COTTON CONTRACTS

We hear that complaints are made of considerable inconvenience resulting to mercautile men from the peculiar terms on which it has become the custom to make contracts for the sale of goods for arrival. To avoid the possibility of disputes respect: ing such packages as may arrive damaged it has become usual to insert a clause to the effect that the buyer may either take them with such allowance as is made on account of the damage or may reject them alogether. The result of this is not very difficult to conceive. If the market rises, the goods are taken freely with the allowance for damage; if on the other hand, the market falls; every trifling flaw on the bale is carefully looked out as a ground for refusing to accept it. It is evident thus that the clause in the contracts respecting damaged packages which is one of considerable importance as the majority of merchants insure piece goods free of particular average is altogether one sided, and results in being entirely in the buyer's favour, while no benefit is derived to the seller. The system we believe had its origin in the great days of cotton speculation in Shanghai; when in order to protect themselves against the fraudulent dealings of Chinese sellers, the foreign merchants were compelled to insist upon such terms. The Chinose, with that unlucky tendency to chicanery which so much pervades their mode of transacting business, found out a very convenient way of evading the carrying out of a loosing contract. The ordinary plan affording this was as follows: A native would contract with a foreign merchant to deliver to him so and so many bales of ootton at such and such a day. If the mar-Ket went in his favour, punctually he appeared at the appointed time with fair average Throughout the entire code of law, rob. cargo for delivery. If the market howto cope with. If the merchant objected, he was quite ready to meet him with the proposal that the inferior cotton should be returned and the contract cancelled by which means he of course got off free of loss, if not actually with a profit, while the merchant, who had stood the risk of nothing by events turning out in a conbeing thus imposed upon was to insert in the contracts a clause giving the merchant the right either to throw up the contract or to make a reduction in payment should went to the Che-Heien's Yamun, but as the escape with impunity, the Pekin authorities tations, and we have thereby been moved to the cargo offered in fulfilment of the bargain be of inferior quality to that agreed no redress. Probably the gunboat was no exile a large number of the functionaries should thus transgress the laws. The law. upon. Subsequently in the earlier days of shirting speculations it was found advantageous to apply a similar principle to transactions for a rival in those goods. This resulted from the frequent cases in which parcels arrived so much damaged by tainly noticeable as an instance of the use- steps to give a legal existence to the Huai, place of execution, there to die, and his mildew that the buyer reasonably objected to receive them at any price; and had so magistrates, modified its regulations and to be hung up in chains as a warning to far a right to ask for a clause to be inserted altered its name to the Tai-ping-she or the all. To these particulars are added summaries and statistics of the TRADE of each open Port, compiled from the most recent official returns, accompanied by descriptive details of the varied branches into which foreign commerce is divided, together with statements respecting Coinage, CURRENCY, and Exchange, LINES OF STEAM COMMUNICATION DISTANCES, and rates of PASSAGE Money. Hints, and recommendations to travellers, giving full particulars of OUTFIT and mode of proceeding to the less frequented settlements, are also included, combined with notes on DOMESTIC MARKETS and Mode or living.

In addition to furnishing similar particulars, the Section devoted to Hongkong contains an historical sketch forming a chronological index of the chief events which have occupied public attention between 1841 and 1865, including Political Events, Changes in the Government Service, the passing of important Ordinances, the 先 ABBIVAL and DEPARTURE of EMINENT RESIDENTS, a record of the most notable PIRACIES, ROBBERIES, MURDERS, FRAUDS, A. 7. FIRES and Criminal TRIALS. ADDRESSES and PERSENTATIONS, &c., &c.

The appendix contains full tables of the P. & O. and MESSAGERIES Companies' lines. of the Pacific Mail Company's and ALFRED
